Celebrate

“A great moment in the history of Bridgewater College.”

That was my evaluation more than five years ago when the Board of Trustees selected Phil Stone to serve as Bridgewater’s seventh president. As chairman of the search committee, I was confident that Phil had the leadership skills, the vision, the integrity, the energy and the enthusiasm to make a great college president.

Now, as we mark the five-year milestone of Phil’s administration and the closing of the 20th Century, it is reassuring to reflect on the ways that confidence has been affirmed.

From the Personal Development Portfolio program to steadily increasing enrollment,

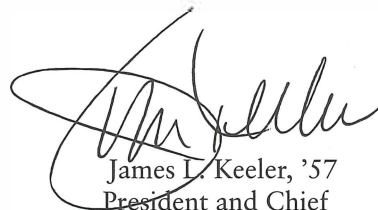

From the emphasis on ethical leadership to the impact of the new McKinney Center for Science and Mathematics,

From the ever-improving academic profile to the joy of athletic triumphs,

From the generosity of new supporters and long-time friends to the steadfast loyalty of alumni —

Bridgewater’s “early Stone age” has been cause to celebrate.

With this issue of Bridgewater, we do celebrate — and look forward to even more great moments in the College’s history.

Celebrate!

With this special edition of Bridgewater magazine, we are celebrating the accomplishments and successes of the last five years — and looking ahead with celebration at the plans for Bridgewater into the next century.

ON THE COVER: At BC, when we celebrate we ring the bell — and that is what President Stone is doing high in the bell tower atop Memorial Hall. Harrisonburg photographer Roy Early, perched on the peak of the roof, captured the moment for the cover of this issue.

In the fall of 1899, Bridgewater College (through its predecessors the Spring Creek and Virginia normal schools) had been in existence for almost 20 years. As the school year began, 144 students arrived on campus anxiously looking ahead to the new century — the 1900s. As we now stand at the close of that century, we look back at some of the important events, issues and aspects of student life during these 100 years on the Bridgewater campus.

We hope that this retrospective will bring back memories of your days at BC — some perhaps long forgotten, some perhaps easily and often recalled — and that it will give you insight into the lives and times of BC students who came before you or who have come since.

As the 1899-1900 school term opened, Walter B. Yount was in his eighth year as president of the College. Students came from varied educational backgrounds; more than 80 percent were Virginians; and more than one-third were women. They ranged in age from well below 20 to 40 years old. Many more were enrolled in the “preparatory school” than in the “college course.” Most resident students worked — ringing the bell, firing the stoves, dusting benches and chairs in the chapel and classrooms — to help meet the costs of their education. Chapel was a part of daily life, and on Sundays three chapel services — morning prayer, Sunday School and evening preaching — were held. The three literary societies were the center of campus social life with weekly meetings that often included recitations, orations, essays, musical numbers and debates; athletic activities including baseball, football, basketball (for both men and women) and tennis were popular.

- Intercollegiate athletic competition was banned by the Board of Trustees in 1909 due to objections by many of the College’s patrons who thought that participation in athletic competition led to “pernicious, dissipating and irreligious habits.”
- In the spring of 1909, the first automobile driven onto campus caused much excitement among students, faculty and staff.
- The first Sunday service to be illuminated by electric light was in August 1904. Oil lamps were slowly replaced in campus buildings during the decade.
- “Bridgewater Fair” debuted in 1902 at a Virginia-Lee Literary Society meeting and was recognized within a few years as the official college song.
- Suggested by two faculty members as the official college colors, crimson and gold were first displayed by the baseball team in the spring of 1903.

Victorian Literary Society, 1922

- An emergency fee "of $10 was levied against students during WWI because of "the constant rise in the cost of food and fuel, the impaired attendance especially of young men and other conditions over which we have no control."
- Students celebrated the prohibitionists' victory in the statewide vote outlawing the sale of alcohol with speeches, songs, the ringing of bells and a bonfire on the athletic field.
- In 1916, intercollegiate athletic competition (except football) was reinstated after the newly reorganized men's athletic association presented the Board with a petition signed by 26 students.

Students head to dinner crossing East College Street, Circa 1907. Stanley Hall is in the background

- The Young Men's (and Women's) Christian Associations were organized in 1912 "to further develop the moral and religious life" of the students. Nearly all of the boarding students were members.
- Academic entrance requirements were introduced in 1910. The Latin requirement for a B.A. degree was removed in 1912.

1920 -1929

- Many now familiar organizations and events started during the 1920s — Founders Day (1920), student government ('21), Ripples yearbook ('22), May Day ('23), the student newspaper — the BC Bee, later The Talon ('25), The Eagle student handbook ('26), summer school ('26) and Homecoming ('29).
- The BC athletic teams were officially dubbed the Eagles in 1923.
- In December 1925, Bridgewater was admitted to full membership into the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. A special convocation was held in January 1926 to celebrate.
- The first motion picture was shown on campus in 1926.
- "1000 People are Wanted," according to the BC Bee, to cheer on the football team during the 1926 season opener, one year after the Trustees reinstated it as an intercollegiate sport
- Prohibition was on the students' minds. In a 1928 straw poll, they "elected" Herbert Hoover president claiming: "There is little desire for a wet president of the U.S. among students of BC."

1930 -1939

- The purchase of a new "campus

An early debate team

radio" brought much excitement during the fall of 1930. The following year, WRVA in Richmond began broadcasting a talk show on "Important Topics of the Shenandoah Valley" featuring BC faculty and alumni guests.

- "Talkies" (motion pictures with sound) first appeared on campus with the showing of "Make Me a Star" on a Saturday night in 1932. Organizers hoped to make Saturdays literary "Society and Picture Night" on campus.
- The College debaters took center stage, winning two state titles in oratorical contests.
- Upon the recommendation of a faculty/student committee, the faculty voted in 1938 to again discontinue football as an intercollegiate sport because of various difficulties with the program and the team's lack of success.
- In order to be considered degree candidates, juniors and seniors had to declare majors beginning in 1938.

The Changing Face of Bridgewater

As the College grew, as needs changed, as facilities required renovations — the look of the Campus changed, and the students changed along with it.

The original Wardo Hall, circa 1900

1900s — At the opening of the century, three main buildings — College (later Stanley, then Memorial) Hall, the White House (a women's dormitory) and the first Wardo Hall — WERE the Bridgewater campus. During the decade, Founders' Hall replaced College Hall as the main building, and a central steam plant, Yount Hall and a gymnasium were added.

1910s — The original Wardo was replaced with a brick building

1920s — The athletic fields were relocated next to the river (1924) and officially named Riverside Field in 1929. Stanley Hall was moved into alignment with Founders' and Wardo halls, and the façade was bricked. In 1928, its name was changed to Memorial Hall. Rebecca Hall opened as a new women's dorm and dining hall. The Cole Hall auditorium was built and dedicated.

1930s — The White House (built in 1888) was torn down. An organ was installed in Cole Hall. The library moved from Founders' Hall to the basement of Cole Hall.

1940s — Fourteen trailers, provided by the Federal Housing Administration, were home to many students, mostly those married with families. Two temporary men's dorms, North Hall and the North Hall Annex, were constructed (where present day Wright and Heritage halls stand). Blue Ridge Hall opened.

1950s — The burning of the physics building (located behind Wardo) in 1951 precipitated the building of Bowman Hall that was completed in 1953. A new gymnasium and Wright Hall were added to the campus. Memorial Hall was renovated, and the music department, snack shop (The Eyrie) and bookstore were relocated there.

1960s — The Alexander Mack Memorial Library opened. More students created a need for more dorms, and three new ones were built — Daleville to house women, 1963; Heritage (men), 1964; and Dillon (women), 1966. In 1969, Cole Hall received a face-lift and the stately columns and front steps were replaced with a glass façade and an inside stairway; Moomaw Hall was built; and the Kline Campus Center (located between Rebecca and Cole) opened with breezeways connecting the three buildings.

1970s — Yount Hall was retired as a dorm, renovated and converted to administrative offices. The basement of the Alumni Gymnasium (named Nininger Hall in 1981) was completed, and the swimming pool was added.

1980s — Wakeman Hall was built to replace Wardo Hall as a new men's dorm. Flory Hall was created by joining Wardo and Founders' halls that were remodeled for use as offices and classrooms. Nininger Hall was expanded and updated to include new locker rooms, handball courts, weight/training room, physiology lab and an elevator.

1990s — Geisert Hall was built across Dinkel Avenue from Heritage Hall. The College barn was torn down to make way for the McKinney Center for Science and Mathematics, which opened in 1995, and Bowman Hall, the former science building, was remodeled.

Operation booklift, 1963

- "Life Problems Week" provided meetings and personal interviews for students concerning "problems confronting young people of marriageable age."
- During 1941-42, students campaigned vigorously to be allowed to have personal radios in their dorm rooms.
- Wardo Hall, traditionally the domain of male students, was turned over to women during the fall of 1945 due to the large number of female students compared to male students during WWII.
- Due to the large post-war enrollment, chapel services were permanently moved from the assembly room in Memorial Hall to Cole Hall.
- In the fall of 1948, the College Trustees voted to reinstate intercollegiate football competition in 1949 after the sport had shown such popularity in intramural contests. Students voiced their support and voted in favor of increased student activity fees to help support the program.

- In 1945, students submitted a list of 25 recommendations, including the desire for more formal dinners and formal and informal teas, which the faculty approved.

1950 - 1959

- Some long-held College rules began to relax in the '50s as men were permitted to smoke in their dorm rooms and at select locations in town, and chaperoned dances were permitted, first off-campus for senior parties and then on-campus with increasing frequency. Regular on-campus dances came after much debate and controversy, and even the resignation of the student body president to show his commitment to the pro-dancing cause.
- Radio WVBC (later renamed WGMB) went on the air in December 1956, broadcasting campus news, sports, original dramatic programs and interviews with visiting scholars; in its second year, the station aired music, both live music on campus and rebroadcast from Washington, D.C., FM stations.
- An influenza epidemic swept the campus in the late fall of 1957. More than 25 percent of the student body was ill, and many student activities were cancelled although classes were held as usual.
- Only one year after its inception, the BC golf team captured the 1957 Mason-Dixon Conference championship.

1960 - 1969

- Sporting a season record of 17-4, BC's 1959-60 men's basketball team won the Virginia Little Eight championship and placed second in the Mason-Dixon Conference's southern division tournament

- Fashion was big news, and co-eds vied for the opportunity to be selected as BC's "Best Dressed on Campus" by Glamour Magazine.

- The "family style" food service, in place since the College's founding, was replaced in 1961 by "cafeteria style" in order to relieve overcrowding and avoid serving meals in shifts.

- The library "booklift" involved many students who packed and carried the books and other materials from the basement of Cole Hall to the new library building.

- Student protests came to Bridgewater in April 1967 when several hundred students held a peaceful rally and submitted a list of grievances to the College administration concerning: the prohibition of alcoholic beverages; curfew hours and the number of "late leaves" permitted for resident women; the no dorm visitation policy for men and women; infrequency of opening the dorms to outside visitors; conservative dress code; class and convo attendance requirements; restrictions on living off-campus; and other concerns. Many of these restrictions were loosened and/or lifted during the coming years as a result of this and subsequent protests during the 1970s.

- Students are treated to on-campus performances by several popular music groups — the Drifters in 1964, Platters, '65; The Association and Sam the Sham, '67 — and enjoy other on-campus entertainment opportunities with the introduction of "Coffee Houses" in '65.

1970 - 1979

- Change was in the air in the '70s as:
 - Students were allowed private phones in their dorm rooms.
 - Freshmen were allowed cars and no longer had to wear beanies.

- Juniors and seniors could choose which convocations (which had replaced chapels in 1967) they attended, and the number for required attendance dropped to seven.

- Names of students who violated the honor system were no longer publicly posted.

- Tobacco-smoking privileges were extended to the snack shop and other campus buildings.

- Resident women were allowed unlimited "late leaves" (with parental permission), and the curfew policy was lifted.

- Experimental "Open-Houses," allowing dorm visitation on Friday and Saturday nights, were initiated.

- Student attire "should be neat, clean and appropriate to the occasion" is how the new, more liberal dress code, established in 1970, read. Now Wednesday dinner was no longer a "dress-up" occasion, and shorts (of the Bermuda variety) were allowed in most public campus buildings.

- The new Blue Ridge "Dating Rooms" provided a place for male and female students to socialize.

- Suspension of five students for violating the anti-drinking policy precipitated a large night-time protest in 1971 when students marched on the president's house and denounced the College's action, charging inconsistency

- The Eagle's Nest, a back room at Woody's Restaurant (now Karl's), opened as a popular hang-out for students who wanted to enjoy a beer and conversation. (Later, the campus snack shop name was changed to the Eagles Nest).
- The women's basketball team captured the state tournament title in both '76 and '77.

Campus protest, 1967

1980 - 1989

- It was the end of an era as the Wardo men closed the doors on the historic hall in the fall of 1980 and relocated to the new Wakeman Hall, which was built despite early protests by students about its location on the College farm property.
- The Prime 550, a larger, faster, "upgradeable" computer with 17 terminals for faculty, administrative and student use was installed in 1980 and "should function for ten years without major modification, unless there is some jump in computer technology." Two upgrades later, a new faster computer with more capacity and capability was installed serving 50 terminals and 14 printers campus-wide.

- Decade firsts:

- The Eagles win the ODAC football title in 1980 with a 4-1 conference record.
- Commencement exercises were moved outdoors in 1981 at the urging of the senior class.

- The men's basketball team won its first bid to the NCAA tournament in 1987 after clinching its second consecutive ODAC regular season title.

- Rumors of evacuation and a threat of losing electricity came on the night of Nov. 4, 1985, as the North River rose at the rate of six feet an hour and flood waters inundated the athletic fields, causing more than $200,000 in damage.

- Suspicious, unidentified men seen in the women's dorms in the early morning hours prompted an examination of campus security and inadequate lighting in 1988.

1990 - 1999

- The campaign for extended dorm visitation hours continued with success in the '80s, as hours were extended incrementally over the years. Hours of operation also were extended in other campus buildings (the library, computer labs, etc.) at the request of the students.
- The campus is "wired" with fiber-optic cable to network computers campus-wide and with co-ax cables to provide an on-campus cable system. By 1995, students could access the World Wide Web from their dorm rooms.

- Bridgewater classes were expectedly cancelled on April 5, 1995, as President Stone made good on his promise of a "snow" day, despite the snow-less winter. Students relaxed, slept in, spent time with friends, watched movies and played games that were organized on the mall.

- Students turned out in record numbers to cheer on the men's and women's basketball teams when both earned bids to the NCAA tournament, the first-ever for the women. Both teams advanced to the "Sweet 16" round for the first time.

- Full-time enrollment topped 1000 for the first time in 1996.

- As the century closes on BC, students, faculty and staff are adjusting to a new semester system, implemented after many years of the 3-3-1-3 term system.

English Education

Every year, several Bridgewater students take the opportunity to travel abroad to study for a semester or for a year. I am one of the students who has participated in this study abroad program, Brethren Colleges Abroad.

Last fall I traveled to Cheltenham, England, for a three-month stay. During my time there, I studied at Cheltenham and Gloucester College of Higher Education, traveled throughout the country, made friends and grew as a person.

Initially, I was frightened of traveling alone because I was leaving my family, friends, school and country for a strange place. I quickly felt at home, though, thanks to the BCA staff in Cheltenham.

BCA is associated with Bridgewater and five other Brethren colleges in the United States; the program provides study experiences in England, France, Spain, Germany, Greece, Mexico, Ecuador, Japan, China and India. During the 1998-99 academic year, 13 Bridgewater students studied in one of these locations for either a semester or a year.

Peter Whitely, BCA resident director in Cheltenham, and Lance Kenney, a 1995 graduate of Bridgewater and graduate assistant, were responsible for the group of Americans studying in Cheltenham. They taught us the basics of the British lifestyle. For instance, they reminded us that cars drive on the left side of the road and to look carefully before crossing the street.

During my time in Cheltenham, I grew to love the British lifestyle. Days were spent in classes and shopping on the High Street; evenings were spent meeting and relaxing in the local pub. Life had a slower pace in England.

I believe I learned the most about the British culture by traveling. The sites in England have so much history, and I loved visiting the places most people only see in photos. Stonehenge, the Tower of London and Dover were all memorable.

There are several experiences that stand out in my mind as the significant events that I learned from while living in England. The obvious ongoing effects of the country's history on its people, specifically the two World Wars, stick out in my mind. I will never forget Remembrance Day, which commemorates the end of World War I and the soldiers who lost their lives in it. Poppies, the traditional symbol of the memory of the war, were displayed everywhere — on coats and on memorials — and many towns held memorial services in honor of the day.

That day, the war memorial in Cheltenham was surrounded by thousands of poppies. At 11 a.m., from a hill overlooking the town, three gunshots were fired, marking the end of the war. At that moment, everyone on the street stopped and stood in silence. I experienced then, for the first time in my life, the true effects of the horrors of war on a country that lived and suffered through it. The immense reverence and appreciation displayed that day were remarkable.

Another eye-opening experience was a visit to St. Michael's Cathedral in Coventry, which was bombed during World War II leaving only the spire. As I toured the cathedral and heard the story of the night it was bombed, I was overwhelmed with emotion. A film described Coventry's night sky being lit up by hundreds of German bombs, leaving little of the city

Making a Difference

The teacher's aide has become a vital, but sometimes nearly invisible, partner in modern classrooms. Training too often has been meager, an after-thought or even non-existent. However, this is changing through a program of training for paraprofessional educators (teachers' aides), designed by two members of Bridgewater College's education faculty with support from the Jessie Ball duPont Fund of Jacksonville, Fla.

This past summer, Dr. Carole C. Grove, professor of education and chair of the education department, and Rodney S. Morris, instructor of education, led five workshops — "Making a Difference: Connecting Teachers and Teachers' Aides" — for paraprofessionals throughout Virginia. Four were sponsored by the Virginia Department of Education through a $40,000 grant, which is renewable for five years in the state's attempt to reach teachers' aides across the Commonwealth. The fifth workshop was contracted by Roanoke County on its own because it was not scheduled for one of the state-supported workshops. Next January, when Bridgewater students are in their three-week Interterm, Dr. Grove and Prof. Morris will take their workshop to Birmingham, Ala., for a statewide session.

The Jessie Ball duPont Fund, which contributed $75,000 in a matching grant to help support the first four years of Bridgewater's special education undergraduate program, also has financed several customized training programs, including the model for the paraprofessional workshops, through a two-year grant of $55,000 annually.

The first of the paraprofessional training workshops, paid for by the grant from the duPont Fund, was held last summer at Bridgewater. A demonstration on how to put together such a workshop was presented earlier this year in Charlotte, N.C., at a national meeting of the Council for Exceptional Children. There, Dr. Grove and Prof. Morris began to realize the program's potential. Expecting 10-15 people to show up for the CEC presentation, they instead had an audience of more than 65.

In between teaching classes and conducting workshops, Dr. Grove and Prof. Morris are writing Virginia's guidelines for paraprofessional training, using the "Making a Difference" workshop as one model. Both have experience in the public schools working with — and as — teachers' aides. Their interest in preparing aides for special education programs grew out of that experience.

Prof. Morris worked as a teacher's aide while completing his master's degree and taught special education at Spotswood High School in Rockingham County and Kate Collins Middle School in Waynesboro before joining the Bridgewater faculty in 1997. Dr. Grove, who taught in Virginia and Maryland before joining the Bridgewater faculty in 1990, also has served on the Rockingham County School Board.

Teachers' aides, Prof. Morris said, too often "feel unprepared" for their duties and are not sure what their role is expected to be. "Teacher's aides don't receive a lot of praise and reward. These workshops help build their confidence and boost their morale," he added.

Both Dr. Grove and Prof. Morris have focused their attention on special education and have been involved in a collaboration between Bridgewater College and the Office of Continuing Education at the University of Virginia that, through both undergraduate and graduate courses, leads to certification and recertification of special education teachers.

Although the workshops grew out of needs in special education programs, the "Making a Difference" workshops are open to aides in both general and special education classrooms.

The Jessie Ball duPont Fund was established in 1970 as the Jessie Ball duPont Religious, Charitable and Educational Fund by the will of Jessie Dew Ball duPont. Mrs. DuPont was born in 1884 in Virginia and focused her life on philanthropic and charitable work. Now renamed the Jessie Ball duPont Fund, the foundation makes grants exclusively to institutions that received contributions from Mrs. DuPont between 1960 and 1964. It funds projects, particularly in the South, "to assist . . . institutions in developing the internal capacity to meet the present and future needs of their specialized constituencies and local communities." (Mission Statement, Jessie Ball duPont Religious, Charitable and Educational Fund)

"None of these exciting programs would have been possible without the extraordinary support by the Jessie Ball duPont Fund," said Dr. Grove. "This funding has gone far beyond just benefiting Bridgewater and its students," she added. Bridgewater received the final installments of the generous grants in support of the special education program in the 1998-99 fiscal year.

standing. The following morning, the city residents examined the destruction of the city and found the cathedral in ruins. One man took two charred beams from the cathedral's destroyed structure, tied them together in a cross that he planted in a pile of rubble at the altar. The man began to pray that God would forgive the Germans. The cathedral remains today in ruins as a monument of the forgiveness shown that day. A new cathedral that connects with the first one was completed in the 1950s.

As I experienced Remembrance Day and the war memorials, I realized how little I knew of wartime and the respect it deserves. I admire the generations who lived then and the people of Coventry who showed forgiveness, and I hope I learn from their actions.

New Faculty

Bridgewater College welcomed a full-time assistant professor, Dr. Philip T. Spickler, and two adjunct instructors, Melissa Fretwell and Kevan Yenerall, to the faculty for the 1999-2000 academic year.

Dr. Spickler returned to the Bridgewater faculty as assistant professor of physics. From 1988-91, he was a full-time instructor of physics at Bridgewater, where he had graduated cum laude in 1985. He received his M.S. degree from Ohio University and his Ph.D. degree in physics from The College of William and Mary. Most recently, he was assistant professor of physics at Ferrum College.

Dr. Spickler has had papers published in Solar Physics and the Journal of the Acoustical Society of America. He is a member of the American Association of Physics Teachers and the American Astronomical Society - Solar Physics Division.

Dr. Spickler and his wife Katrina live in Bridgewater with their daughter, Kaelyn.

Joining the education department as an adjunct instructor was Melissa Fretwell, a 1994 graduate of Bridgewater College. She received her master's degree in special education from the University of Virginia in 1998.

For the past two years, she has taught emotionally disturbed and learning disabled students at Spotswood High School. She also served as assistant varsity girls' basketball coach. From 1994-97, Miss Fretwell was the learning disabled teacher for Rockbridge County High School in Lexington, Va.

Mr. Yenerall joined the Department of History and Political Science as a visiting instructor. He graduated magna cum laude from Duquesne University with a B.A. degree in political science and English. He received a master's degree in political science and is pursuing a Ph.D. from Miami University in Ohio.

For the past year, Mr. Yenerall has been a teaching fellow in the Department of Political Science at Miami University.

In 1999, he received the Russell and Ada Evans alumni scholarship from Miami University, awarded in recognition of academic excellence, leadership and creativity.

Jessie Ball duPont Center for Teacher Education

To Open This Fall

The Jessie Ball duPont Fund of Jacksonville, Fla., has again shown its support of Bridgewater's education department by granting the College $50,000 for the 1999-2000 academic year to create two state-of-the-art model classrooms, one with a model educational media center for professional teacher training. With receipt of the grant, Bridgewater also received permission to name the area where the education department is located The Jessie Ball duPont Center for Teacher Education, permanently linking the education department with the excellence of the Fund's reputation.

Bridgewater's education department has grown tremendously over the past five years, due in large part to generous funding from the Jessie Ball duPont Fund for development of the special education program. Bridgewater's teacher education program emphasizes the current model for effective teaching — interactive, student-centered instruction, rather than stand-and-lecture teaching. Based on this model, classrooms today are designed to provide student-centered learning emphasis, which relies heavily upon current technology resources. Even though approximately 23 percent of all our graduates plan to become professional teachers, Bridgewater did not have the resources to provide real world model classrooms — until now.

Beginning this fall, the duPont Center will provide Bridgewater's pre-service teachers the opportunity to learn how to use additional instructional equipment. Pre-service teachers will be able to begin their professional teaching careers comfortable with using teaching stations, ceiling-mounted VCR's and LCD projectors interfaced with classroom computers, as well as the computers and peripherals they will encounter. This will enable Bridgewater's graduates to concentrate on effective teaching, instead of learning how to operate unfamiliar equipment.

Bridgewater has had a long association with the duPont Fund, including major funding support in the mid-1980s for the remodeling of Flory Hall, the location of the education department.

Naming the center for Mrs. DuPont recognizes a woman who led an exceptional life. Jessie Dew Ball duPont was born in Virginia in the late 1800s. She was educated in a one-room country school and later at what is now Longwood College. She taught school in her home county until 1908, when she moved with her parents to San Diego. There, she became assistant principal in the largest elementary school in the city and contributed to the support of her elderly mother and father. She married Alfred I. duPont in 1921, and, upon his death in 1935, she became the principal trustee of his estate. In his memory, she created three foundations. From the time of her marriage, Mrs. duPont focused her life on charitable and philanthropic work. When she died in 1970, her will established the Jessie Ball duPont Religious, Charitable and Educational Fund to continue her philanthropic work. The principles and interests that she pursued during her life still guide the fund today. (Jessie Ball duPont Fund 1998 Annual Report)

Mighty Moose

Eagles' First Baseman Named to Division III All-America Team

The Bridgewater baseball team enjoyed a return to its glory days in 1999, as the Eagles captured their first Old Dominion Athletic Conference championship in three years and secured a berth in the NCAA South Regional tournament for the first time since 1995. Leading the BC resurgence was junior first baseman Robbi Moose, who shattered nearly every school season record en route to earning second team Division III All-America honors from the American Baseball Coaches Association.

Coming off an outstanding 1998 campaign in which the Front Royal, Va., native was chosen the ODAC's Player of the Year, Moose refused to rest on his laurels heading into his junior season. He spent countless hours during the off-season in the weight room and the batting cages, hoping to perfect his swing and draw the attention of area major league scouts.

Moose's persistence paid immediate dividends. The Eagles' slugger raised his home run total from seven in 1998 to a school-record 17 this spring. He also established BC single-season marks for hits (67), runs batted in (59), total bases (143), slugging percentage (.883), and extra base hits (39). His 17 home runs were seventh-best among all Division III players last season. Moose again was named the ODAC's Player of the Year (the first time in league history a player has won the award twice), as well as the Virginia College Division Player of the Year, and became the first Bridgewater player since Buck Gordon in 1995 to garner All-America recognition.

"I was really hoping just to do what I did the year before and help the team get to (the) regionals," remarked Moose on his record-breaking season. "I was glad to see us come back from where we started off (the Eagles were 12-14 before winning 10 of their last 12 regular season games) and have such a successful year."

"Robbi is one of, if not the, hardest working hitters I've ever had," said Eagles' head coach Curt Kendall, who guided the Eagles to the league title for the seventh time in 14 years. "He works an extra number of hours on his swing, and obviously it's paid off for him. He's put up better numbers offensively than anyone we've ever had here, and he got the recognition he deserved as an All-American."

Moose will return to strike fear in the hearts of opposing pitchers in 2000, although the slugger toyed with the idea of entering the professional ranks. The Kansas City Royals wanted to draft him in the 23rd round of last June's amateur draft, but Moose declined the offer when the organization refused to pay for his continuing education. Instead, Moose will attempt to lead the Eagles to an unprecedented 10th ODAC championship while earning his undergraduate degree in health and physical education. "I still hope to play professional ball, but if things don't work out in baseball, I'm looking to get a master's in sports management," he said.

With his dream of becoming an All-American fully realized, Moose has but one goal for his senior year. "I want to help this team get to the (Division III) World Series," he said. "I know what the regionals is all about, now I want to take the next step."

Hall of Fame to Induct Eight

The Bridgewater College Athletic Hall of Fame will induct eight former Eagle standouts at the 6th annual Hall of Fame banquet on Friday, Oct. 15. Joining the 27 men and seven women already enshrined in the Hall of Fame are:

•Galen G. Craun, '33, who will be honored posthumously as a baseball and basketball player during his student years and for his decades of service as team physician to the Eagles' athletic squads;

•Fred A. Diehl, '60, an All-Conference and All-State performer in track as well as a letterman in football and basketball and a standout on the College's club fast-pitch softball team;

•Donald L. Dofflemyer, '58, an All-State and All-Little Eight football player who excelled as a high school football coach, winning four district titles, a regional championship and a state runner-up trophy;

•Paul L. Hatcher, '66, an All-Virginia Little Eight and All-Mason-Dixon Conference standout in basketball and a four-year letterman in golf who now tops the Virginia High School League in career wins as a basketball coach;

•Susan Billhimer Phillips, '77, a regional All-Star in lacrosse who went on to compete internationally as goalkeeper of the U.S. squad which won the World Cup in 1981 and a four-year member of the Eagles' hockey and women's basketball squads;

•Samuel E. Ritchie, '59, an All-Virginia-Little Eight pitcher on the Eagles' baseball team and a letterman in football and basketball who later was a successful high school football and baseball coach, athletic director and principal;

•Wayne E. Spangler, '53, an outstanding sprinter on the Eagles' track teams who ran a 9.6-second 100-yard dash in 1952 — still a BC record — and who later served as a missionary and as a high school guidance counselor; and •Owen Lee Wright, '58, a four-year letterman in baseball who became an outstanding college coach with a Division III national baseball championship and numerous district regional titles in baseball and soccer.

Celebrating Milestones & Vision

Just a few days before Phillip C. Stone would mark the fifth anniversary of his assuming the presidency of Bridgewater College, he reflected with Bridgewater editor Ellen K. Layman about the challenges he has faced and what he anticipates for Bridgewater College's future.

Photos by Roberta W. Byerly

What's your proudest achievement in the first five years?

The most conspicuous success — where you can point to something and say, "Boy, that really worked. I mean I know we did a good job" — would be in enrollment. Not only have we grown the College from the mid-800s to mid-1100s, but we've done it at the same time that we've increased the academic quality of the students and abandoned any efforts to go in adult learning directions.

In terms of the effect on the College, probably the most important thing that will happen while I'm here would be Portfolio (Personal Development Portfolio). Not because it is a radical departure from our past. In fact, Portfolio pulls together much of what we have done historically — holistic education, developing the whole person — but it's more overt, it's more disciplined, it's more focused. It involves the faculty in a much more direct way. It makes education a more cohesive program. But it is also a challenge.

It has the potential for making us a very special place. And the response we get never varies. Just the other day, I heard that two or three people who showed up for orientation from out of state said they got to our Web page. They had never heard of Bridgewater, and they became intrigued by Portfolio.

I had one person ask me if we could provide Portfolio information on the home page. I started to explain that we really didn't want to get into distance learning, but he said, "Well, the reason I'm interested is I wondered if you couldn't do a program that would let adults from the community, particularly alumni and friends, participate in Portfolio." He's a minister, and he wanted his congregation to start looking at something like that.

One of the most prominent business people in this community told me it was the best idea he ever heard coming out of education. Other college presidents ask me about it.

When we go to visit corporate executives for the Virginia Foundation for Independent Colleges, who do not know Bridgewater at all, they are very impressed with it.

Your greatest disappointment?

Well, at first it would have been the enrollment picture. We had a dip in 1994 that was unexpected. So it started us off a little bit in a hole. And that was a disappointment.

I think the other is that we haven't been able to do more in building a more cohesive community. We have a very strong community, but it should be ever stronger. Everybody should feel some responsibility to participate fully in the community, even though we can't all do everything. I guess another disappointment for me is that we probably are not doing enough to address the spiritual and religious needs of our students. I think we just kind of assume that there is a religious aura here that keeps things going. In fact, a good number of our students do not participate in religious activities. We'll look at ways to try to make sure that the campus community reflects our heritage and our belief that spiritual maturity is a part of being educated.

What is the most enjoyable thing about being a college president?

Working with students. There's a freshness and idealism associated with youth that is stimulating, and I like

"President Stone has the ability to inspire people, to challenge people to be their best. He has vision to see our College as one of the best schools available, and has helped others see how to make it happen. We are fortunate to have him as our president."

— Wallace H. Hatcher, '55,
Chairman, Bridgewater College Board of Trustees

being associated with it. You are just constantly aware of how much difference you can make in their lives. You are reminded of that almost every time that you talk with students. They are very impressionable, still open to influence. It's a great opportunity.

What is there about the job that you did not expect?

I knew that there was a heavy load of development and public relations. I certainly expected to interact with students and faculty, so those were not surprises. I am surprised how much of my time is spent doing administrative matters, personnel, looking after budgets, all those kinds of things.

What do you miss about practicing law?

I miss the people. The practice has become so commercial, so combative and so rough that some of the pleasure of the practice has been removed anyway. My best friends were in the law firm. The people that I admired the most were there — my mentors, the people I looked up to. And the clients with whom I worked on a regular basis. I do miss them, and I miss the sense of satisfaction of solving legal problems.

What did you learn as a lawyer that has helped you as president?

Lawyers are pushed pretty hard to think analytically, really trying to sort out all the information that's in front of us. We learn not to waste a lot of time on options that aren't really available — and to move on once we've decided. And, even if something is the least attractive thing you have for that day, go ahead and try to do it. Being able to hear contrasting versions of incidents helps me, because I have had the experience every lawyer has of hearing one version of facts from the clients and a different version in court. So, if a student appeals a case, I'm not likely to be very gullible about the defenses and claims. On the other hand, I think I'm open to their stories.

What do you wish you had more time to do?
Professionally and personally?

I wish I could do more teaching. I've taught Brethren history every other year during Interterm, and I have thoroughly enjoyed it. I would like to teach some additional history courses, maybe a seminar on Lincoln and the traits of Lincoln's presidential leadership. I wish I had more time for interaction with the faculty in terms of sitting in on a lecture, having a chance to talk to them about things they are reading or writing.

Personally, I have not yet managed to control my schedule and activities to find enough time for family and personal needs, such as physical exercise.

Alumni from the mid-1970s walk in and say they haven't been back to campus since graduation and want to see what's happened around here since. Where do you take them to show them?

Well, first, I would tell them the story of Mr. (Edwin) Turner, who is in his 90s and came to visit campus a few weeks ago. And he stood in front of Wardo (now the west wing of Flory Hall) with his daughter, and he pointed up to the room where he lived. He could tell from the window outside. And he waved his arm across the campus as he turned toward the mall and said, "This is just extraordinary. This is just beautiful."

To have someone who remembers the campus for 70 years, instead of reflecting the nostalgia of the things that might have gotten torn down or changed, to acclaim its beauty and how it holds onto what he treasured, tells us that we have been able to hold onto the real Bridgewater College look.

Having said that, I would have to say that the look has really changed. We no longer have the farm. It's gone. The McKinney Center is the most conspicuous change because it not only is a dominating building, but it really is the anchor on that side of the campus. I did not fully appreciate until it was in place how much it created the rectangular mall, enhanced by the double rows of trees and the columns on Bowman and Blue Ridge. It really made the campus look like it had been designed beautifully.

With the flowers and trees, McKinney and the renovated Bowman Hall, alumni from the '70s would see a big difference. I think they would see an awful lot of things that are the same. Over here on College Street, a lot of things are the same.

As we start the Renaissance 2000 campaign, to complete the Center for Worship and Music and the Funkhouser Center for Health and Wellness, I'd like to focus on the two endowments – $5 million for Personal Development Portfolio and $2 million for a technology and equipment fund. What do we expect to be able to accomplish with those two endowments?

As a predicate, I keep reminding myself, and say to our constituents, that we don't have any goal to build buildings, but we

"Our athletic programs have been enhanced by having the resources and persons to better maintain our fields. The new bleachers and floor painting in the gymnasium have helped to update Nininger Hall and our playing facility."

— Laura Mapp, Associate Professor of Physical Education, Emerita

build people. To the extent that buildings enhance the environment for young people, that's what ought to be done. That's the way we ought to prioritize.

When it comes to Portfolio, we're doing some of the things we'd like to be able to do on an endowed basis, but they really strain us. Things like employing a director. Steve Watson's been PDP director; we've given him some release time but it probably needs to be full-time. We've had planning retreats. We've developed materials. We've covered some of the expenses of going to art museums and the things that the PDP students do. We need to do more.

One of the hardest obstacles to overcome in the PDP program is the workload of the faculty. The real success of PDP will be dependent on faculty participation. Because our faculty carry heavy loads, generally teaching eight courses a year, asking them to do PDP, particularly PDP 150 (the freshman course), is asking a lot. And doing it year after year is grueling. I'd like to have the resources to be able to relieve those loads. That would mean two to three additional full-time faculty members to take on the classes those (PDP) faculty would be giving up.

If PDP is to be effective, frankly, even survive, we've got to make it an integral part of the teaching load.

When we look at the academic side, the equipment and the technology, that's become an extraordinary expense. About the time I came here we were just making a decision to computerize the library. We were replacing the mainframe for administrative computing. We had relatively few PCs around the campus. We have networked the campus. We computerized the library. And it cost 3 to 4 million dollars. We didn't like to have to spend that, but I thought that we could not be credible to students if we did not have adequate technology, if we didn't have a library that had technology. We simply had to go ahead and make that investment.

But, technology depreciates. Unlike bricks and mortar, it depreciates pretty quickly. That doesn't mean that we have to have the newest things everywhere, all the time, but it does mean that some things become obsolete and almost useless and must be replaced.

The other piece of the technology endowment that we're looking at is our TV satellite system. We want to be able to do teleconferencing in addition to regular TV service. It would be a great way to build a sense of community to have our own campus TV channel used effectively. A lot of colleges have FM stations; we now have the capacity for a good radio station.

In addition to that we've got to have better academic equipment. We were really fortunate last year that our friends at the Lilly company helped us get those NMRs (nuclear magnetic resonators). Our academic departments are depending more and more on depreciable assets and equipment. We really need an endowment to cover replacements and improvements.

The Fred O. and Virginia C. Funkhouser Center for Health and Wellness

"Building people — not buildings — is our fundamental mission at Bridgewater College. All of our buildings, resources and energies must be devoted to that mission."

President Phillip C. Stone

Building people — Academically • Physically • Spiritually...

That's the vision of the Renaissance 2000 campaign. The $17 million goal includes five major projects:

The Fred O. and Virginia C. Funkhouser Center for Health and Wellness

The Carter Center for Worship and Music

The Personal Development Portfolio®/Bridgewater College Leadership Institute Endowment

The Resources for Scholarship Endowment • The Helping Hand Scholarship Endowment

We're Building People...

The Fred O. and Virginia C. Funkhouser Center for Health and Wellness, to be constructed on the south side of Dinkel Avenue east of Dillon Hall, brings together facilities to enhance the physical well-being of Bridgewater's students, faculty and staff. Included is a large gymnasium with a full-size basketball/volleyball court or two cross-courts for basketball, volleyball or tennis. A three-lane jogging track will encircle the gym.

Two racquetball courts, exercise and weight training facilities plus a multi-purpose space for aerobics and wrestling will offer a variety of activities that link directly to the goal of physical wellness that is one of the eight dimensions of the Personal Development Portfolio® program.

The Funkhouser Center will be devoted to recreational play, intramural sports, physical education classes and indoor practice facilities for intercollegiate teams during inclement weather. The College's health services offices also will be located in the Funkhouser Center. Intercollegiate competition will continue to be housed in Nininger Hall, the current physical education and sports facility.

The Funkhouser Center combines the interests of the Funkhousers — a devotion to young people and a commitment to healthy living.

The Renaissance 2000 goal for the Funkhouser Center — to build and fully equip it — is $5 million, of which $3 million already has been donated by Mr. Funkhouser.

Bridgewater of Virginia

October 1999

Dear Friends:

On Commencement day, when the Memorial Hall victory bell peals its congratulations to the graduating seniors, it also is ringing in gratitude for all of you who have supported Bridgewater College. Through your financial support, prayers and advice, you have helped those eager (or sometimes apprehensive) seniors achieve what has long been their dream — a college degree.

This report each year is Bridgewater's way of saying a public "Thank you" for those gifts that are at least partially measurable: your monetary contributions and your acts of volunteerism on behalf of the College and its students. Every name listed in the following pages is a valued supporter of the Bridgewater mission of educating and developing the whole person. You give us cause to celebrate.

This last President's Report of the 1900s is indeed a celebration. We had the second-best fund-raising year in the College's history, exceeding $5 million — an 11 percent increase over the previous year. In addition, new pledges in 1998-99 assure us of another $7.2 million in the coming years.

Two former trustees, A.D. Miller and Charles D. Lantz, provided for the College in their wills. Combined, their lifetime giving to Bridgewater has topped $3.1 million; more than $1.1 million was received during 1998-99. Mr. Miller, Mr. Lantz and their wives established scholarship funds that will bring college education within the financial reach of generations of BC students.

Another great friend of Bridgewater, Fred O. Funkhouser, has donated the first $3 million toward the construction of a new health and wellness center for the campus community. Mr. Funkhouser for many years was a banker in Harrisonburg; he now lives in retirement in Florida. The center will be named the Fred O. and Virginia C. Funkhouser Center for Health and Wellness in honor of him and his late wife.

We also celebrated this year a major gift from the Eli Lilly Co. in Indianapolis, where two of our alumni, Dr. A. LeRoy Baker, '61, and Dr. C. David Jones, '65, encouraged the donation of over $200,000 worth of used equipment for our science labs. If we had purchased this equipment new, it would have cost well over $1 million.

Each gift is a cause for celebration. Let's continue to ring that bell — for athletic victories, for academic achievements, for the support of good friends. Thank you for all you do for Bridgewater College!

1998-99 Highlights

The sheer pleasure of unexpected gifts and the deep satisfaction of long-anticipated goals converged to make 1998-99 a majestic exclamation mark with which to wind down the history of the 1900s at Bridgewater College.

Fred O. Funkhouser, a retired Harrisonburg banker now living in Florida, jump-started the planning for a campus wellness center, with three gifts of $1 million each over a five-month period in early 1999. The center will be named the Fred O. and Virginia C. Funkhouser Center for Health and Wellness in tribute to Mr. Funkhouser and his late wife. A construction schedule had not been established, but architectural plans were being completed by late summer.

A second unexpected gift, this time from a family with close ties to Bridgewater College, provided the momentum for the renovation of the College Chapel, formerly the Bridgewater Church of the Brethren. Beginning in the fall of 1999, the Chapel will be transformed into a center for worship and music.

Requests from two former trustees, C.D. Lantz and A.D. Miller, boosted their respective endowed scholarship funds by a combined total of more than $1.1 million during 1998-99.

Those gifts — targeted toward students' physical, spiritual and educational well-being — led the way for Bridgewater's second-best fundraising year ever. (Details of the year's gift income are on Page 8.)

And the satisfaction of achieving long-term goals? Just look at the faces of the 1999 graduates! On May 16, Dr. Paula P. Brownlee, president emerita of both Hollins College and the Association of American Colleges and Universities, encouraged the 229 graduates to claim "the gift of unencumbered time" and use that time for creative endeavors too often forced out of busy schedules.

The graduating class included 14 summa cum laude graduates, 15 magna cum laude and 51 cum laude graduates. Dr. J.D. Glick, pastor of First Church of the Brethren in Harrisonburg, Va., and a new member of the Bridgewater College Board of Trustees, spoke at baccalaureate.

Commencement capped an academic year that had begun in record-breaking fashion — enrollment climbed to 1,112 full-time students, an all-time high and 31 percent above the comparable figure just five years earlier. The student body included a biggest-ever freshman class of 343.

And once again, Bridgewater was cited by Barron's as one of its 300 Best Buys in College Education.

In other highlights of 1998-99:

FACULTY. Joining the full-time faculty were Dr. Brian M. Kelley, assistant professor of psychology; Dr. Verne E. Leininger, assistant professor of mathematics; and Dr. Carol A. Scheppard, assistant professor of philosophy and religion. Retiring from the faculty were Lamar B. Neal, associate professor of political science and history, with nearly 28 years of service, and Dr. Dale V. Ulrich, professor of physics, whose 38 years of service included 15 as dean of the College, nine as provost and 14 as professor of physics.

Dr. Carole C. Grove, professor of education, was named head of the Department of Education, and Dr. Robert B. Andersen was selected as chair of the Department of History and Political Science.

Prof. Laura Mapp and Dr. W. Robert McFadden, who retired in 1998, were awarded emeritus status.

Richard E. House, assistant professor of music, received a Doctor of Musical Arts degree from Arizona State University.

STUDENT LIFE. Maria D. Dove, a senior English major from Harrisonburg, Va., reigned as homecoming queen and was escorted by Charles A. Robinson, a senior English major from Dover, Del., the student body president.

In October, the Student Senate dedicated a sundial on the McKinney lawn as a memorial for classmates who had died during their years in college.

The forensics team won the 15-school Morgan State University Forensics Tournament.

Twenty-nine students, accompanied by Dr. Harriet E. Hayes, assistant professor of sociology, went to Miami over spring break to volunteer with Habitat for Humanity.

Three students — seniors Anthony Alentado and Sarah Smith, both of Harrisonburg, Va., and junior Jude Clapper of Meyersdale, Pa., — presented papers at the American Chemical Society's national meeting in Anaheim, Calif.

Seniors Jenny Shook of Topsham, Maine, and Marvin Williams of Harrisburg, Pa., reigned as Queen and King of May. Both majored in psychology.

Amy K. Nance, a rising senior majoring in family and consumer sciences, won the Alumni Association scholarship valued at $2,400; Spencer A. Nice, a rising junior majoring in biology, received the $1,800 junior scholarship presented by the Alumni Association.

ATHLETICS. Jenn Frack was named Old Dominion Athletic Conference (ODAC) Volleyball Player of the Year.

Football placekicker Michael Padgett was named to the Burger King Division III Coaches' All-America team and played in the Aztec Bowl Division III All-Star game in Monterrey, Mexico.

Kyle Williford was selected ODAC's Freshman of the Year and the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) Division III Freshman of the Year in men's basketball.

The women's basketball team won the ODAC tournament; senior Connie Ritchie was selected the tournament's Most Valuable Player (MVP); and the team advanced to the NCAA South Region tournament.

Melissa Baker was named Most Valuable Player at the ODAC indoor track championships, and Shane Stevens was named ODAC Coach of the Year for indoor track.

The baseball team captured its ninth ODAC tournament championship; Gene Crawford was selected the tournament MVP, the team advanced to the NCAA Division III South Region Tournament; Robbi Moose was the ODAC's baseball Player of the Year and was named to the All-South Region first team; and Coach Curt Kendall was named Virginia's Division II and III College Baseball Coach of the Year.

AWARDS. At the annual President's Dinner, senior Amber Cropper of Millsboro, Del., a psychology major, received the College's first Outstanding Service Award for a student, and Mark R. Warner, chairman-elect of the board of trustees of the Virginia Foundation for Independent Colleges, received an Outstanding Service Award.

During the Spiritual Life Institute, the first Merlin E. and Dorothy Faw Garber Awards for Christian Service were presented to Myron S. Miller, '47, of Richmond, Va., retired executive secretary of the Virginia Council of Churches, and to Jonathan Brush, a senior philosophy and religion major from Rapidan, Va.

At Founder's Day, Marion E. Mason, '53, retired controller and treasurer of the Leggett Stores and a member of the Bridgewater College Board of Trustees, received an Outstanding Service Award. A new award for current students, the Outstanding Leadership Awards, were presented to Scott J. Brown, a senior sociology major from Madison Heights, Va., and Jenny J. Shook, a senior psychology major from Topsham, Maine.

Dr. Richard L. Bowman, professor of physics, received the Martha B. Thornton Faculty Recognition Award, and Dr. Robert B. Andersen, the W. Harold Row Associate Professor of International Studies, was presented the Ben and Janice Wade Outstanding Teaching Award.

SPECIAL EVENTS. Lyceum programs for the year included the Shenandoah Shakespeare Express' Taming of the Shrew; the Richmond Symphony Chamber Orchestra, with a guest appearance by the Bridgewater College Concert Choir; organist Diane Belcher; and the American Brass Quintet.

Karen Armstrong, author of A History of God, presented the Anna Beahm Mow Lectures, and Suzan Shown Harjo, an advocate for Native American rights and culture, presented the Hersch-Weimer Lectures.

The Pinion Players packed the Cole Hall auditorium for a fall production of Fiddler on the Roof and turned the stage in a theatre-in-the-round for Beckett's acclaimed Waiting for Godot. The annual student-directed one-act plays included works by two student playwrights — senior Joshua Cunningham, an English major from Troutville, Va., and junior biology and psychology major Nathan McCann of Richmond, Va.

Dr. William D. Phillips, Nobel Prize-winning physicist, lectured at Bridgewater as part of Physics Awareness Week.

PASSINGS. Dr. Garland F. Miller, '33, a member of the Bridgewater College Board of Trustees since 1965 and its chairman from 1978-85, died Sept. 7, 1998, at the age of 86.

Kern W. Beale Sr., who worked in the College's food service for more than 40 years and served as chef for most of that period, died Oct. 5, 1998, at the age of 75.

Life Trustee Harry A. Driver died Dec. 8, 1998, at the age of 95.

Rugby St. John, a painter on the buildings and grounds staff for 11 years, died April 10, 1999.

Change And Success Mark '98-'99 Annual Fund

"Whoever said that change is one of life's few constants was right on target!" Larry Johnson, Bridgewater's national chairman of the Annual Fund campaign, observed as his tenure and the 1998-99 campaign drew to a close with a June 30 Annual Fund total of $932,942.04.

"The success of the campaign is a testament to the regard Bridgewater's supporters hold for the College and to the effort that almost 600 volunteers put forth. The Annual Fund program was restructured in '98-'99, so the year was defined by change," Mr. Johnson noted.

The class agent program saw the most significant change. Its structure moved from one of about 165 alumni volunteers to some 550, each writing personal notes to classmates encouraging support of the College through the Annual Fund.

Individual giving increased in all areas except alumni participation. While the alumni campaign saw a 6.9 percent participation increase in unrestricted giving, the alumni participation rate decreased 9 percent. "Institutional Advancement staff members will be analyzing the decrease among the College's largest group of prospective supporters," said Charles Scott, vice president for institutional advancement.

The participation rate of parents exceeded goal, with two-thirds of the support coming from freshman parents. The number of current parent donors increased by 130 percent, and parents of alumni donors increased by 19 percent. Friends participation increased by 18 percent. Faculty and staff exceeded the goal when they increased their 1997-98 participation rate of 41 percent to 58 percent in '98-'99.

The Business and Professional Campaign also showed an increase over last year's figure. The volunteer efforts of 70 businessmen and women garnered almost $118,000 in cash and gifts-in-kind from 112 donors in the Rockingham and Augusta County areas, an increase of approximately $5,000 over last year.

"This past year we learned that change does not come without its challenging moments. But we also have learned that this year of change proved to be a good thing for Bridgewater's Annual Fund. I'm confident that Jeffrey Heppard, national campaign chairman for 1999-2000, will build on the volunteers' accomplishments, and that we will see another year of change and success for the Annual Fund," concluded Mr. Johnson.

Foundations, Corporations Boost Scholarships, Research, Equipment

Foundations, corporations and government agencies supported programs at Bridgewater College in various ways during 1998-99. These are a sampling of those special grants:

ALCOHOL AWARENESS — An alcohol awareness program was launched at Bridgewater College during the 1998-99 academic year as a result of funding received from the Virginia Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (ABC). The ABC Board granted Bridgewater approximately $1,725 to undertake a program aimed primarily at stemming underage drinking. The College undertook a comprehensive effort to educate all students about the dangers of alcohol abuse.

GENERAL EDUCATION CURRICULUM — Support in the form of a two-year grant of $105,000 from The Teagle Foundation Inc. of New York City enabled Bridgewater College to complete Phase I of the general education curriculum restructuring, which is being implemented this fall.

SOFTWARE LICENSING — Microsoft Inc. donated free licensing of three of its software products to Bridgewater College for two years. The value of this gift is approximately $76,310.

STUDENT RESEARCH — Shenandoah's Pride Dairy provided funding for Sarah Smith, one of Bridgewater's top 1999 graduates with a double major in chemistry and psychology, to pursue her senior research project in chemistry. The dairy granted $4,900 to fund research on conjugated linoleic acid, an anticarcinogen found in cows' milk.

SCHOLARSHIPS — A generous grant of $67,500 from the Lettie Pate Whitehead Foundation Inc. of Atlanta provided scholarships for 39 female Bridgewater College students.

SCIENTIFIC EQUIPMENT — Eli Lilly & Company Inc. of Indianapolis gave Bridgewater College several pieces of used scientific equipment worth approximately $231,000. New, this equipment would have cost well over $1 million.

EQUIPMENT FUNDING — With a recommendation from the Alcoa Building Products plant in Stuarts Draft, Va., the Alcoa Foundation of Pittsburgh gave Bridgewater College a $10,000 grant which was used to rebuild high performance liquid chromatographs (HPLC) for the chemistry department.

CONTRIBUTED SUPPORT

An 11 percent increase in support from Bridgewater College's alumni and friends boosted 1998-99 contributions to just over $5 million.

The $5 million in cash receipts for the year was the highest at Bridgewater since 1992-93 when $9.9 million of the late Dr. Robert M. McKinney's $11 million estate gift was received, raising total giving that year to just over $11.7 million.

In addition, the College received new pledges of more than $7.2 million to be paid in coming years, bringing the 1998-99 total fund-raising effort to $12.2 million.

The estates of two former college trustees — A. D. Miller of Roanoke and Charles D. Lantz of Broadway — paced the cash contributions, which totaled $5,061,250.

Mr. Miller served on the College's Board of Trustees from 1951-65 and then was a Life Trustee until his death in 1984. In 1972, he and his wife, Emma Grace Humbert Miller, established an endowment fund at Bridgewater College to support scholarships. Nearly $532,000 of the couple's lifetime giving to the College — more than $1.3 million — was received during the 1998-99 fiscal year.

Mr. Lantz served on the College's board of trustees from 1959 until his death in 1996. He and his wife, Vergie C. Lantz, have given the College more than $1.8 million; the final payment of $600,000 from his estate was received during the 1998-99 fiscal year.

The 1998-99 pledges were led by a $3 million gift of Fred O. Funkhouser, a retired Harrisonburg banker. His gift initiated fund-raising for a new health and wellness center, which will be named in honor of him and his late wife.

1998-99 HONOR ROLL OF DONORS

Bridgewater College has established two tiers of recognition to honor those men and women — past and present — who through generous investments of time, talent and resources have undergirded the College for continued excellence in higher education.

One tier recognizes cumulative giving and includes the initial amount of gift annuities and charitable trusts. Donors attain membership in these societies when their cumulative giving reaches a minimum of $50,000. The CHAIRMAN'S CIRCLE recognizes cumulative giving of $50,000-$99,999; the FOUNDERS SOCIETY honors donors of $100,000-$249,999; the JOHN W. WAYLAND SOCIETY recognizes gifts totaling $250,000-$499,999; the WALTER B. YOUNT SOCIETY cites donors of $500,000-$999,999; the DANIEL C. FLORY SOCIETY recognizes cumulative giving of $1,000,000-$3,999,999; and the top level, the RENAISSANCE SOCIETY, recognizes lifetime giving of $4,000,000 or more.

The second tier recognizes annual gifts of $100 or more made from July 1, 1998, through June 30, 1999. Those club levels are described with the donor listings.

With deep gratitude, Bridgewater College thanks each donor for his or her loyalty and support.

Virginia Foundation for Independent Colleges

The contributions coming to Bridgewater College through the Virginia Foundation for Independent Colleges represent Bridgewater's share of funds raised by the cooperative efforts of 15 of Virginia's senior private colleges and leaders of the state's business community. Other VFIC member institutions are Emory & Henry, Hampden-Sydney, Lynchburg, Mary Baldwin, Randolph-Macon, Randolph-Macon Woman's, Roanoke, Sweet Briar and Virginia Wesleyan colleges and Hollins University, Marymount University, Shenandoah University, the University of Richmond and Washington & Lee University.

Since the VFIC was founded in 1952, it has raised almost $93.7 million for its member institutions. In 1998-99, contributions and endowment payout exceeding $3.78 million were received; the average share to member colleges was nearly $237,000. Allocations are based partially on full-time equivalent enrollment, and Bridgewater's fund share was $211,817 (including cash and in-kind services). Cumulatively over the years, Bridgewater has received more than $5.37 million through the VFIC. Bridgewater gratefully acknowledges the following VFIC leadership contributors for 1998-99:

Memorial Gifts

Each year, donors who choose to remember a loved one — or to honor a worthy individual — do so with generous gifts to Bridgewater College. We receive these gifts with deep appreciation. We recognize those special donors and the individuals to whom they paid tribute in 1998-99.

Annuities

As of the end of the fiscal year 1998-99, life income plans including unitrusts and gift annuities, have been established with the College as beneficiary amounting to $12,711,702.

These arrangements assure donors of substantial lifetime earnings and their gifts ultimately will be used to strengthen the College.

Bequests

Bridgewater College acknowledges with gratitude the gifts received in 1998-99 through bequests from the following loyal and generous supporters:

Alumni

Each year, Bridgewater College counts among its blessings the gifts from those who know the College best - her alumni. Listed on the following pages by class are those alumni who made donations to their alma mater between July 1, 1998, and June 30, 1999. In addition, we record the total amount contributed by members of the class during the year. To protect the confidentiality of the amount of gifts, no dollar amount is given in cases where fewer than three class members made contributions during the fiscal year.

A special thanks to the alumni who serve as class agents and others who volunteer for various projects during the year. The class agents are listed together on Pages 38-39; volunteers are identified in italic type. Our apologies to any volunteer who may have been inadvertently omitted from the listing.

Alumni of Affiliated Schools

The term "Bridgewater College alumnus" embraces many supporters of the College who completed part or all of their high school or college education at schools which later merged with or were affiliated with Bridgewater College.

Today, alumni of Blue Ridge Academy and College, Bridgewater Academy, Daleville Academy and College, and Hebron Seminary retain their affection for their former schools, and many also show generous support for Bridgewater College. We are proud to include them in our alumni family and thank those who supported the College financially in 1998-99.

1998-99 Class Agents

As part of the restructuring of the Annual Fund, the College's Class Agent program was revamped in 1998-99. Teams of volunteers from each decade, led by a decade captain with a lead agent for each year, personalized their contact with classmates. The recruitment of volunteers is continuing. Thanks to all of those who met the first-year challenge and made it a success.

Friends

Bridgewater College receives gifts from many individuals in addition to those from Bridgewater alumni and parents. These friends share an affection for the College and a firm commitment to its mission. They include members of the Board of Trustees, college faculty and staff, and members of the broader Bridgewater community. Thank you for your belief in Bridgewater and for your support in 1998-99.

We're Building People...

The Carter Center for Worship and Music will complete the transformation of the former Bridgewater Church of the Brethren into a tailor-made home for the Department of Music and a serene, inspirational setting for worship services and quiet contemplation. It is being named in honor of the Leonard C. Carter family. The late Mr. Carter, a trustee of the College, and his wife, Gladys Nolen Carter, have been benefactors of the College for many years. Their two children, the Rev. L. Clyde Carter Jr. and Barbara Carter Stone, both of whom serve on the College's Board of Trustees, and their families have continued the legacy of support.

Basic renovations at the Carter Center include a new heating system, installing central air conditioning for the first time, upgrading electrical systems and developing restroom facilities on both the lower level and the main floor to meet the standards of the Americans with Disabilities Act.

Specialized facilities include nine sound-proofed practice rooms for music students plus seven sound-proofed faculty offices. The social hall on the lower level will be redesigned as a rehearsal hall for choral and instrumental ensembles. An archives and workroom will be equipped with computer stations and a high-density music library.

Both the sanctuary and the small chapel behind the narthex will be retained and refurbished for worship services, convocations, concerts, recitals and programs serving both the campus and the community.

The Renaissance 2000 goal for the Carter Center is $4 million to cover the cost of acquisition and complete the renovation. Of this, $2 million already has been raised.

We're Building People...

Three endowments are tied directly to Bridgewater College's mission statement. One, to underwrite the Personal Development Portfolio® (PDP) program and the Bridgewater College Leadership Institute (BCLI), relates to the objective that all graduates "will be equipped to become leaders." Another, to assure the constant upgrading of resources for student scholarship, links to the campus being known as "a learning community." The third, to begin a revolving fund to help financially-stressed students stay in school, speaks to the College's aspiration of being a place where each member of the community is affirmed by the other members.

The PDP/BCLI Endowment will allow the hiring of additional faculty to assume part of the teaching load of faculty members selected to be freshman PDP advisors. Earnings from the endowment also will bolster the Leadership Institute's program of bringing acclaimed speakers to campus for the High School Leadership Academy, for the PDP emphasis on leadership and for continuing education programs for community and business leaders.

The Resources for Scholarship Endowment is set up to address the constant need to upgrade computers, scientific equipment and classroom/library materials as well as to provide research grants for outstanding students. As the College enhances its academic program, providing modern equipment and research support ranks second only to the recruitment of exceptional scholars and teachers for the faculty.

The Helping Hand Endowment is just that — a helping hand when an incoming student or a current student faces an economic crisis that jeopardizes his or her ability to stay in school. Almost every year, a few students experience financial stress relating to a parent's death, debilitating illness, job loss or other economic setback. Too often, discretionary funds are not available to continue meeting college costs. Offering a Helping Hand is in the best Bridgewater tradition of being a community of character. Students who receive the Helping Hand scholarship will be encouraged, when they are able, to give back into the fund to assure its availability for those who follow.

The Renaissance 2000 goal for the PDP/BCLI Endowment is $5 million; for the Resources for Scholarship Endowment, $2 million; and for the Helping Hand Endowment, $1 million. All three funds are being established with the opening of the Renaissance 2000 campaign.

The Renaissance approaches. Help Bridgewater College build people — academically, physically, spiritually — by becoming a partner in Renaissance 2000!

What is to become of Memorial Hall?

Memorial will always be here. It means so much to us in terms of its history and the number of students who have been exposed to that building, been in it, used it. The bell tower is an important fixture in our culture. We haven't really made any specific plans. Among the things we have considered, and probably the most likely use of it, would be for our development and public relations activities. It might be in the form of an alumni hall, which might be combined with our development office. It might be a gathering place for our alumni. I can't think of a better use for it in terms of current use fitting its past.

How do you characterize Bridgewater College students?

I find them honest. They are not pretentious at all. They come from backgrounds that make them feel that they are supposed to earn their way, that they should work for what they get. Many young people today are over-indulged and spoiled; that is a characteristic of our culture. I think our students have a better work ethic and a better sense of responsibility than some students who might be from more pampered backgrounds.

How do you rate BC compared to the other Virginia private colleges?

In terms of the quality of students... the percentage of faculty with PhDs ... all the kinds of things that people often look at as criteria, I would say we're behind two or three that have a national reputation. We're as good as any of the rest. And we're probably much better than half of them. In terms of what we do for our students, I don't think there's anybody that does a better job.

In comparison with the other Church of the Brethren colleges?

We are blessed with very strong colleges. There are two or three of us who are all strong enough that I would have to say we are probably in a pack together. And I think all the Brethren colleges are strong enough that nobody's far behind.

"President Stone has raised the bar of performance for students, faculty, staff and alumni by his personal commitment and example in striving for excellence.

His dialogue and interaction on a personal level have enhanced the morale and attitude of all those he comes in contact with, particularly with students...Dr. Stone truly personifies the phrase College of Character, Community of Excellence."

— Bill Earhart, '66,
President, Bridgewater College
Alumni Association

"I see Bridgewater guided by a greater commitment to quality and excellence. This is apparent not only in academics, where each entering class is increasingly qualified and a greater number of students are taking advantage of off-campus opportunities such as research experiences and internships. One can also witness this quest for improvement through other areas of college life including the growing number of athletic teams participating in NCAA tournaments and an ever more impressive array of lectures and performers."

— David Young, Class of 2001
Student Body President 1999-2000

Freshman HIGH SCHOOL GPA & SAT SCORES

"The four years I attended Bridgewater were full of change. President Stone spent many hours listening to the students. His heart was in the job for the love of the school and its students. Although many of us joked how many times the word was used, BC really is a great community. President Stone did what he could to make the community grow successfully and fully. He has good vision and wonderful dreams ... and he has worked hard at making them come true."

— Amy Dreibelbis Messler, '98

What's the biggest challenge facing presidents of private colleges as the new century opens?

Certainly money. We've got to get endowments to the place where you can have a consistent, predictable stream of income, because students simply cannot meet the financial requirements of the colleges. Presidents will continue to spend a lot of time on that.

Another big challenge is that colleges are so oriented around majors and departments and disciplines. They've lost a lot of the cohesion that I referred to earlier. It's harder to focus on a common mission. It's harder for people in one department to become friends with people in a different department, even though it's a small college. And it's harder to be credible when you tell students that they need to be interested in many things and good at many things and that all learning should relate. The president has to encourage the kind of community that makes education appear to be an indivisible whole.

What would you like for Bridgewater to recapture that you feel might have been lost since you were a student here?

One of the things I treasure about my own experience was the out-of-class interaction between students and faculty. A lot of that is still going on. I think back on times with Dr. (Frances) Silliman, Dr. (Harry) Jopson, Dr. (Bernard) Logan, (Librarian) Agnes Kline, and it's just incredible how much they influenced our lives...Maybe it's because we're busier, but it just seems to me that there's not as much of that as there used to be. And I wish we had more of it — particularly in intellectual ways.

I'd like for students to enjoy and not feel embarrassed to sit down and start talking about some book they read or speaker they just heard. We saw just a taste of that when we had Justice (Antonin) Scalia on campus and had a talk-back session. People were engaged, they cared, they were thoughtful...So we see those indicia of intellectual interest and stimulation. But I still think we need to have a more intellectual climate.

If someone shows up tomorrow with a check for $20 million for the College, undesignated, to use as you think best, what do you start with?

One, I would get Portfolio like we want it. Second, I would try to develop the scholarship program to make it easier for our students to afford a college education. We would finish the projects we are working on right now, the wellness center and the chapel. We would start looking aggressively at expanding the library in some manner, through technology and/or bricks and mortar. And the fine arts facilities. I would also address faculty salaries; they are too low.

President Stone has not only indicated his love and respect for the Church of the Brethren, he has demonstrated it in the strong way Bridgewater College provides quality religious activities on the campus, and the way it enters into supportive relationships with districts, local congregations and denominational programs that encourage ministerial education and recruitment in behalf of the church." — Earle W. Fike, '51

The reasons for supporting Bridgewater College are as numerous as the thousands of individuals, businesses and foundations that faithfully give of their money, time and possessions to forward the mission of the College.

Celebrating Friends

The stories of five of these dedicated friends are shared here to inspire, and to demonstrate that support takes many forms.

Bridgewater chemistry majors expected to hear 1961 alumnus LEROY BAKER talk about the satisfaction he gained as a research chemist for 34 years, working in cancer research and developing Humulin®, human insulin and the first drug from recombinant DNA technology.

And, on a late spring afternoon in the McKinney Center for Science and Mathematics, Dr. Baker did talk about the joy he had found doing “work that has literally helped and improved the lives of tens of millions of people.”

Then, he might have surprised the college students when he asked, “But do you know what has given me the most joy in my life?” He quickly and movingly listed his joys: “Watching my children grow up...working with Habitat for Humanity...making trips to the jungles of Honduras to build clinics... internships at Eli Lilly and Co. for students from the Hershey School... mentoring kids...making a down payment on a house for a young mother with two children whose former husband had spent everything they had on crack cocaine.”

Being able to serve, he said, puts real meaning in the once-familiar corporate motto: “Better Living Through Chemistry.” A profession in chemistry has provided the opportunity and the means to volunteer in humanitarian service — a bonus in addition to laboratory achievements, he said.

At Bridgewater College, Dr. Baker and his wife, the former Wanda Harmon, also Class of 1961, have expressed that desire to help others by establishing an endowed scholarship fund of over $400,000. The fund honors Mrs. Baker’s parents, the late Alvin T. and Macie M. Harmon.

The earnings from the fund provide financial assistance to students coming to Bridgewater from Floyd and Carroll counties in Virginia, with special consideration to those who are students at Joy Ranch in Hillsville, Virginia. If there are no eligible students from that geographic region, the Harmon Scholarships go to chemistry students who qualify for financial aid.

Dr. Baker, who attended the Hershey School for orphaned boys, has noted his appreciation for the help of generous benefactors through his college years. The assistance he received helped him finish his degree at Bridgewater and go on to become the first student at Virginia Tech to earn a Ph.D. degree without first completing a master’s degree.

His work — beginning in 1965 at Worthington Biochemical Corp. in Freehold, N.J., then at Inolex Corp. in Chicago and finally for 21 years at Eli Lilly and Co. in Indianapolis — built on that educational success.

And the kindnesses he had received as a youth impressed on him the joy of giving to others.

If indeed good things come in threes, then Bridgewater College and FRED O. FUNKHOUSER have a good thing in the works.

In May 1999, Mr. Funkhouser presented Bridgewater College a third $1 million gift toward the construction of a health and wellness center, which will be named the Fred O. and Virginia C. Funkhouser Center for Health and Wellness. In January 1999, Mr. Funkhouser generously gave the first $1 million gift to the College, following it with a second $1 million in February.

In accepting the gift, President Phil Stone noted that "Mr. Funkhouser has perfected the art of joyful – and unexpected – giving. He just calls my office and, even if I'm not there to take his call, he leaves the message that he's decided to give Bridgewater College another million dollars."

Mr. Funkhouser, who was a local banker for many years and now lives in Florida, made the gifts in memory of his late wife, Virginia Coffelt Funkhouser, who died in 1997. The Funkhousers both had a special place in their hearts for young people, and, Mrs. Funkhouser, who was a registered nurse, also had an interest in health issues.

Mr. Funkhouser has explained to Dr. Stone that his desire to support Bridgewater College in a substantial way has developed "because yours is a small Christian college trying to educate good people for society."

CHARLES D. LANTZ loved giving gifts, and he loved young people. Combining these two loves, he and his wife, Vergie, set up the Charles D. and Vergie C. Lantz Endowed Scholarship Fund, providing scholarships for young people from the Broadway (Va.) area and from their home church, Linville Creek Church of the Brethren.

In January 1999, the College received the final payment of $600,000 from Mr. Lantz's estate, raising his bequest to $1.3 million, and bringing Mr. and Mrs. Lantz's total lifetime giving to almost $1.8 million.

Mr. Lantz, a member of the College's Board of Trustees from 1959 until his death in 1996, began his support of the College in 1958, when he financed the construction of seven houses adjacent to the campus to serve as faculty housing.

A businessman, founder of Lantz Building Supply and later co-founder of Lantz Construction Co. in Broadway, Mr. Lantz also was committed to serving his community and church. He was a member of the Broadway Town Council and was a member of Linville Creek Church of the Brethren for 67 years, serving as treasurer, deacon, trustee and Sunday School teacher.

The Lantz gift has provided an opportunity for dozens of students to attend Bridgewater College – now and for generations to come.

A desire to pass on to today's Bridgewater College students the same generosity he received through a scholarship motivated DR.

LAWRANCE S. MILLER and his wife CARMEN to establish the Lawrance S. and Carmen C. Miller Scholarship.

Begun in the fall of '98, the Millers' gift of nearly $500,000 helps deserving students who are eligible for financial aid.

Dr. Miller, a member of the Class of '42, received his medical degree at the University of Virginia and served 34 years as an orthopedic surgeon in Morgantown, W.Va., before retiring in 1986.

Even in his retirement, Dr. Miller's excellence as a surgeon has been recognized. In 1993, he was named "The Outstanding Orthopaedist in West Virginia" by the West Virginia Orthopedic Society.

Through their gift, the Millers, who spend summers in West Virginia and winters in Florida, will continue to reap the joy of giving Bridgewater students the financial help they need.

— Mary K. Heatwole

Former Bridgewater College President Warren D. Bowman once wrote to one of his trustees: "You are undoubtedly one of the very best trustees that this college has ever had."

That trustee was A.D. MILLER, who in 1913, after four years of daily walking four miles each way to attend classes, had earned one of Bridgewater's few Bachelor of Accounts degrees.

Today, 35 years after Dr. Bowman penned his words of praise and nearly 25 years after the College awarded Mr. Miller an honorary degree, Doctor of Business Administration, it might be said again that Mr. Miller ranks among the most generous and most loyal of Bridgewater alumni and trustees.

Mr. Miller, who died in 1984, and his wife, Emma Grace Humbert Miller, who was 103 years old when she died in 1996, supported the College in many ways. He served on the Board of Trustees from 1951 to 1965 and, for most of that period, chaired the finance and investments committee. He continued to serve as a Life Trustee until his death.

The Millers offered direct financial aid to worthy students to attend Bridgewater, and he lined up summer jobs at Richardson-Wayland Electric Corp. in Roanoke, where he was an electrical contractor and served the corporation as secretary-treasurer.

When funds were being raised for a new organ for Cole Hall, the Millers were quick to make their contribution.

And, in 1972, their first donation was made to an endowment fund, the A.D. and Emma Grace Miller Educational Fund, to support scholarships at Bridgewater.

In the past two years, the Millers' estate has been settled, and the couple's total lifetime giving to the College has exceeded $1.3 million.

In addition to serving as a trustee and giving generously to the College, Mr. Miller also had other attributes that Dr. Bowman — and presidents since him — found praiseworthy.

President Bowman referred to Mrs. Miller as "a lovely and queenly lady" and stated his appreciation for her partnership with Mr. Miller in trustee functions.

Dr. Bowman also had in Mr. Miller a confidante, someone on whom he could rely for advice and for discretion when, as president, Dr. Bowman needed to unload some of his frustrations. Of course, their friendship had been an enduring one — as children, they were deskmates at a two-room school at Montezuma in western Rockingham County, Va.

To top it off, Mr. Miller also stood ready to encourage the other trustees to give. In 1974, when the Millers made a donation to the College, Mr. Miller wrote that he had no intention of issuing a "challenge" to the other trustees, but he hoped that his and Mrs. Miller's contribution "will stimulate all of our college trustees to maximize their commitments."

And those are among the prime qualifications for "best trustee" honors — to give in a multitude of ways and then ask others to give, too.

Five years from now, when we mark the 10-year milestone, what do you hope to claim as your proudest achievement of the second five years?

I want us to have won the ODAC football championship! That's not number 1, but it's been so challenging. We've tried really hard.

I would say that if the Portfolio program is functioning like it should, there would be an appearance and a quality that you could detect in Bridgewater College graduates that would reflect this holistic approach to education. They would be well-read, articulate, communicating effectively, poised, experienced in campus leadership opportunities, interested in the fine arts, committed to life-long learning, ready to take accountability for self, family and community, to make a difference in the lives of others, with excellent values and good ethics. That must be demonstrable, something you could point to and know immediately: "That person went to Bridgewater." That would be real success.

In terms of the physical characteristics of the campus, I would like for us to have made a decision and implemented it as to whether we get larger. If we get larger, we would need to get larger by at least 100 to 300. We are going to start evaluating what we would gain from being a little larger. We know some things we would lose. We already know we will lose some of the intimacy as we get bigger. And we want to make sure that we don't lose the characteristics of a small college. That would be important.

I would like for the library, even in an age of technology, to become an intellectual center of the campus... to be so heavily used that I couldn't avoid expanding it. The intellectual climate would be demonstrated by the fact that everybody goes to the library on a regular basis.

I would like to see a fine arts building in place by then. It would include a blackbox theatre and probably some type of performing stage. It ought to include both the applied arts and the performing arts. I'd like to have a really nice art gallery.

And in summation?

We have to continue to grapple with a fundamental question: Why would anybody pay private college tuition to send a student to Bridgewater College with so many outstanding public schools that are much cheaper in this very community, this very region?

Ultimately, it's justified for me in the Portfolio program, because Portfolio is really an attitude about education. It requires us to look at the finished product, to try to have a very aspirational, an idealistic, understanding of what an educated person ought to look like, act like and be like — and then build it.

I want our students to begin to think: "How can I imagine, as I get up every day, how can I be a better me? What is within me? What can I be?" Then go and try to build it. "And if I know who I'm trying to become, I'll fail and I'll change my plan, but I will always have some image of who it is I ought to be." I want them to read books an educated person ought to read, to commit to read poetry, to want to learn another language, to want to see other parts of the world, to care about the Third World countries. I want to make sure our students have a very broad, expansive view of what it means to be educated. Not just: "I'm ready to get a job, make a lot of money." That's such a narrow view.

I read an article that claimed the fundamental mission of education is to make sure that students are ready for permanent employment. That's such a limited vision. And even as people who are thoughtful in education and public policy talk about the value of getting our students ready for the workplace — it's very, very important, and we must do it — the focus still has to come back to personal fulfillment. How can I be a fulfilled human being? How can I serve if I am not personally fulfilled and have some understanding of humanity?

So, if we can focus on a very expansive understanding of what it means to be educated, and keep making it ever more aspirational, more idealistic, and produce educated people committed to life-long learning and serving, we will be successful. ■

Weekend 2000
May 5-7

It is with pleasure that I assume responsibility as president of the Alumni Association for the 1999-2000 year. I am excited about the alumni activities and events we are planning for the next 12 months and challenge all alumni to become more active in our events, both on and off campus.

Whenever possible, come back to campus for a visit – not just when you have a reunion. If you have not been on campus for several years, you will be surprised at the many improvements of both buildings and grounds: You won't believe how much Bowman Hall has changed since its days as the science building. Plan to attend alumni events and other college extracurricular activities, such as choir concerts or athletic events, in your home area. Seek out and encourage high school students in your town to consider attending Bridgewater College. And, finally, I encourage all alumni to support the College by making a donation to our Annual Fund. We need to dramatically increase the percentage of alumni who make annual gifts to Bridgewater College so we can compete with other colleges in ranking criteria that are used by foundations for awarding grants.

"Whenever possible, come back to campus for a visit...you will be surprised at the many improvements."

We are now focusing on enhancing alumni relations with students. For example, alumni helped the freshmen move into the residence halls this fall, and the Alumni Association hosted the Great Tent Event for graduating seniors in May. We hope these types of events will foster continued interest in alumni activities after the students graduate and leave campus.

I am very proud to report that I will be the first Alumni President to become an ex-officio member of the Board of Trustees. This is indeed an honor for me and a victory for the Alumni Association because it will strengthen the influence alumni have at the College. Ellie Draper, our past president, played a key role in lobbying for this ex-officio representation on the Board of Trustees.

We began the year with an executive planning meeting on July 16 attended by Alan Shull ('80), president-elect; Gerri Garber Rigney ('74), secretary; Ellie Hodge Draper ('72), past president; and director of alumni relations, Karen Doss ('91). Our newly elected board members are Ed Burgess ('62), Christie Holsinger Curry ('93), Ron Hottle ('70), Sean O'Connell ('85) and Barbara Michael Williams ('94). Additionally, Jeff McCartney ('77) and Eric Kloster ('83) have agreed to serve the board as presidential appointees.

I'm looking forward to seeing you at Homecoming 1999, Oct. 16.

Flagpole Reunion

About 25 years ago, a group of students from Heritage and Wright halls left campus one weekend to party under the stars atop Flagpole Knob in Augusta County. That group of friends has kept their tradition alive over the years with periodic reunions at their old retreat. Memorial Day Weekend 1999, 11 of those original friends gathered with their families for a weekend of camping and reminiscing. This was the first year that children were included in the festivities, and the weekend was a hit with the kids. ■

New Alumni Directory in the Works

Have you ever tried to get in touch with a classmate, only to find that your last alumni directory was five years old? Well, your troubles are over. Soon a new directory of BC alumni will be available to help you locate your friends.

The new Bridgewater College Alumni Directory will be the most up-to-date and complete reference of more than 10,800 alumni! This comprehensive volume will include each person's current name, address, phone number, academic data, plus any business information that is applicable. It will be bound in a classic, library quality edition.

The Alumni Relations Office has contracted Bernard C. Harris Publishing Company Inc. to produce the directory. Harris will soon begin researching and compiling information for the directory by mailing a questionnaire to each alumnus. If you prefer not to be listed in the directory, please contact the Alumni Relations Office in writing as soon as possible. The new Bridgewater College Alumni Directory will soon make finding an alumnus as easy as opening a book. Look for more details on the project in future issues of Bridgewater magazine. ■

Call for Nominations

The Bridgewater College Alumni Association is accepting nominations for the following alumni awards:

■ Distinguished Alumnus Award – is given to an alumnus for his/her vocational or professional achievements and devotion to the College.

■ Young Alumnus Award – is given to an alumnus, 39 years of age or younger, who has made significant career achievements or who has demonstrated that potential, and who has been an active supporter of BC.

■ Ripples Society Medal – is awarded to an alumnus whose class graduated at least 50 years ago, who has expressed his or her loyalty to the College, and who has significant lifetime vocational or professional achievements and/or exemplary involvement in humanitarian endeavors.

If you would like to nominate an alumnus for any of these awards, please contact the Alumni Office, Bridgewater College, Box 33, Bridgewater, VA 22812; (540) 828-5720/5451; kdoss@bridgewater.edu. Nominations must be received by Dec. 31, 1999. Awards will be given during Alumni Weekend. ■

"Time and People"

In this issue of Bridgewater, much is written about the developments at Bridgewater College since Aug. 1, 1994, when I became President. We celebrate our successes and remember with deep appreciation the contributions of previous administrations, faculties and students. We all need to stand on the shoulders of others to reach our potential.

While we can point to dramatic changes in the appearance, programs and facilities of Bridgewater College, perhaps the way we most dramatically feel the full impact of the passage of time is in the changes in our own lives and in the lives of members of our community.

In my own personal circumstances, within the last five years, Cherrill and I have seen significant changes:

- ♦ we moved into the renovated President's House and have entertained several thousand people in our new home;
- ♦ we sold our Lincoln Farm where we lived for 20 years and where our children grew up;
- ♦ a second grandchild was born;
- ♦ three of our four parents died;
- ♦ three of our children received Bridgewater College degrees (our fourth child had already graduated from Bridgewater).

As to the College community, I also am conscious of the passage of time by the changes in our community:

- ♦ the deaths of five students, still remembered with deep affection;
- ♦ the deaths of alumni, trustees and other friends of Bridgewater College;
- ♦ about 1,000 members of our student community have graduated and have left our close-knit campus;
- ♦ the retirement of seven faculty members, each with more than 20 years' teaching experience at Bridgewater College;
- ♦ the employment of more than 20 new faculty members and senior administrators;
- ♦ the births of babies to members of the Bridgewater College family.

Reflecting upon the dramatic changes in our own lives and those of our colleagues makes me all the more conscious of the urgency of time. Our challenge continues to be to develop and educate all the students at Bridgewater College as whole persons. Hundreds of students, for whom time also passes quickly, need our mentoring and support.

While we celebrate past successes and are always planning for future changes, we must never lose sight that it is today's students whom we must nurture and support. Students today face the same problems, perhaps even more of them, confronted by previous generations of students: they struggle with choices; they attempt to overcome problems of self-esteem, shyness and other personal difficulties. But worse each year is the newer challenge presented by broken families, lack of direction and declining cultural values.

Technology, physical facilities, esthetics, academic programs and support services will continue to be better and better at Bridgewater College. The fundamental challenge, however, of building people in a culture that so often works at variance with our mission of developing people of integrity will continue to be daunting. Success in that area — our fundamental mission — will continue to require the sacrificial contributions of energy, creativity and financial resources from all of us related to Bridgewater College. Time will surely tell whether we are successful.
